LEVEL OF SERVICE

TOWN OF KILLAM

LEVEL OF SERVICE – FIRE PROTECTION

Definitions:

The levels of service are based on existing and future equipment and training, using National Fire Protection Associated (NFPA) definitions as stated in NFPA 471 ~ Standard for Professional Competence of Responders to Hazardous Materials and adopted to fit other incident situations.

Awareness level - Responders will recognize risks and hazards, identify specific components by name or situation, identify fire, explosion, and health hazard information, identify specific risks and hazards, secure the area and implement the planned response. (call for trained assistance.)

Operations level - Responders will take defensive action to control the incident. This will include a survey of the incident, collect information, predict the behavior of the situation, estimate potential harm, plan the response and implement, followed by an evaluation of the status of the defensive action.

Technician level - Responder will initiate offensive action to bring the incident under control. This will require use of chemical protective clothing or other specialized PPE, controlling release or spread or product, decontamination, and use of specialized equipment specific to a particular incident.

The following is the minimum level of service that can be expected within the Town of Killam boundaries:
